Parking not easy

Mayor spells out economics of CBD paid parking, as community petitions for change

Access to parking in Wangaratta's CBD and exploration about what free parking might look like remain key concerns for a local business owner set to deliver a 2000 strong petition to council this week calling for change.

Mayor Irene Grant last week verbally reported to council addressing the controversy over the mandatory use of the EasyPark app to pay for parking in the CBD.

She also noted that without parking revenue, council would "either increase rates, reduce services, or introduce levies across the CBD" to compensate for the lost income.

BY STEVE KELLY
 skelly@nemedia.com.au

The necessity of paid parking is tied to a contract signed in 2012 that locked council into the construction and ongoing overheads connected to the three-tier Co-store carpark, with the liability ending in 2034.

"While CBD-wide free parking may seem appealing, it's important to consider the broader impact," Cr Grant said.

"Without this revenue, we'd be forced to consider other options to fill this income gap."

Wangaratta Jewellers owner Matthew Barry said the assertion that residents would see a loss of services without paid parking was "fear mongering" by council instead of saying 'let's try and work this out'.

"Perhaps free parking isn't feasible, maybe, but you've got to take the people with you and say if you want free parking this is what it would look like," Mr Barry said.

He strongly believes that paid parking is a barrier between the customer and businesses which is taking away millions of dollars from the local economy every year.

"All council has to do is take that barrier away from bringing people into town because Wangaratta is not necessarily a destination, it's a hub in the region," he said.

Mr Barry views the method of payment via the Easypark app or a council parking permit is problematic as there is a proportion of people who don't know how to download or use the app, people from out of town don't want to use it, and the permit system is only useful for people who regularly park in Wangaratta and who are actually aware of it.

As a matter of priority, he said the installation of parking meters with capacity to take credit card payments would solve the access issue, and secondly he would like to see council put free parking back on the table to be explored.

Mr Barry has compiled a petition signed by 2159 people calling for changes to the local parking system and he will submit it to council this week.

Council reported there has been a significant uptake in the use of EasyPark to pay for parking in the Wangaratta CBD since July 2025, with more than 14,000 transactions in September 2025 compared to just over 7000 in September 2024 and 8000 in September 2023.

However, Mr Barry said this was bound to happen given it's the only way people can pay for parking now and the statistic was irrelevant.

The average cost of parking in the CBD using EasyPark in 2025 so far is $0.72 per transaction with an average parking time of 36 minutes.

"Council has provided direct assistance to users to help with the use of the payment system," Cr Grant said.

"Council has, and is, responding proactively to feedback to help improve the systems accessibility.

"All councillors have been involved in consultation and discussion with the community.

"The community should also be aware there is also free, timed parking around the CBD, Big W, behind the post office and Performing Arts Centre – council is currently is working to improve on-line and physical signage."

Cr Grant noted that the EasyPark app offers a quicker, more flexible way to manage your parking.

"Users only pay for the time they actually use, which helps avoid overpayment often seen with parking meters," she said.

"Additional benefits include receiving a free reminder before your parking time expires, and you can adjust your parking sessions directly from your device."

Cr Grant said council encourages residents and visitors to share their experiences with the parking system.

She said constructive feedback helps them continue to refine and improve the service to meet community needs.

Council will continue to monitor how the parking payment system functions and will consider feedback and ways to improve the payment system.

A review report will be prepared for the council in June 2026.

TODDLER, PARENTS UNSCATHED AFTER CAR HITS TREE, ROLLS

By BAILEY ZIMMERMANN

A young toddler and their parents escaped injury after their vehicle crashed into a fallen tree and rolled twice on the Hume Freeway near Lilliput on Friday night.

A Victoria Police spokesperson said around 9:30pm the vehicle crashed into a tree which had just fallen across the road in the northbound lanes between Springhurst and Chiltern.

"The driver unable to avoid the tree (due to its size) has collided with the tree, causing the vehicle to roll two and a half times before coming to rest on its roof in the right-hand lane," they said.

"The two adult occupants managed to free themselves from the vehicle before releasing their baby from their car seat."

Wangaratta and Wodonga Highway Patrol officers attended the scene along with Ambulance Victoria and VICSES.

The police spokesperson said due to the child's car seat being secured correctly and all occupants properly secured in seatbelts, they avoided injury and were sent to Northeast Health Wangaratta for observation only.

"This is a timely reminder of how important it is infants and newborns are correctly restrained at all times in a motor vehicle," they said.

"Seatbelts save lives."

The incident came as police started a five-day blitz on Victorian roads for the Melbourne Cup Day weekend.

A Wangaratta police spokesperson said as of Sunday a large majority of motorists were well-behaved and no outstanding incidents were recorded.

The blitz ends late Tuesday night.

Ex-soldier sold drugs, guns to undercover police, court hears

A Yarrowonga man facing charges of gun and commercial drug trafficking was allegedly involved in a shootout at his home after a gun was held to his partner's head, a court has heard.

The 37-year-old faced Wangaratta Magistrates' Court from the Metropolitan Remand Centre looking to be bailed last Thursday.

The court heard a covert police operation was conducted over 12 months looking to uncover alleged serious offending related to drug dealing and gun trafficking within Wangaratta and Cobram.

Wangaratta Detective Sergeant Chris Hill said the operation involved undercover operatives who purchased seven firearms and a large quantity of methylamphetamine off the accused between February and April this year.

The man was charged with profiting with more than $45,000 off the alleged criminal dealings.

The 37-year-old was allegedly involved in a shootout at his Yarrowonga home in Warrick Street on 5 March earlier this year.

The court heard the accused allegedly told an undercover policeman a gun was held to the head of the 37-year-old's partner outside of his house by a man known to police.

After being overpowered and disarmed, the man allegedly left and returned to the accused's home a short time later with three others and shots were fired.

Det Sgt Hill said police were unsure who fired first, but nearby CCTV heard four or five shots discharged.

The 37-year-old is charged with discharging four rounds from a shotgun, with one of the shots allegedly impacting a neighbour's house.

Defence counsel Chris Terry said his client's involvement in the shooting was an act of self-defence.

The accused has been in custody since his arrest in Cobram on 7 May.

He was arrested with four others, including his partner and two Wangaratta men as police seized more than $1 million worth of drugs and 18 firearms from North East streets.

Det Sgt Hill said one of the Wangaratta men was an associate of the accused while the other Wangaratta man faced similar charges unrelated to the alleged offending of the accused.

The defendant's father and his partner's mother appeared in court on Thursday in support of the 37-year-old.

The court heard the man worked in counter-terrorism operations with the army for four years before becoming involved in drug use and a long-standing battle with PTSD.

His partner's mother offered to house the accused if he was granted bail, saying he was like family after reconnecting her with her previously estranged daughter.

"Sadly I think this was the wake up call he required," she said.

The court heard the defendant's partner also lived at the Cobram address and a $100,000 bail surety was offered.

The bail bid was put on hold after a lunchtime adjournment, as the court heard the defendant's partner had been arrested in NSW, which Mr Terry said brought the viability of bail into question.

The accused is due to return to Wangaratta court for committal mention on 15 January next year.

“We will push back”: lobby group devastated by solar farm approval

Lead objectors of the recently approved Meadow Creek Solar Farm have shared their devastation and have vowed to push back “at every stage possible”.

Victorian Planning Minister Sonya Kilkenny approved the 332-megawatt solar farm and 250-megawatt Battery Energy Storage System (BESS) late on Friday evening, going against strong opposition to the project from nearby landholders and local government.

Meadow Creek Agricultural Community Action Group (MCACAG) released a statement following the approval of the development which reflected the local community devastation to not having their concerns heard.

“Ms Kilkenny, who could not even visit the site herself, has ignored our federal and state members, as well as local government with her decision to approve the project,” it read.

“This project is not in a renewable zone and our community will continue to fight this project and attempt to stop it being built for the benefit of future generations.

“Our community has been slapped in the face, but we will not roll over and accept defeat, we will push back at

Company says it'll deliver benefits to community

Development director of Meadow Creek Solar Farm Cameron Munro said the proponents respected the diverse views shared throughout the planning process and thanked those who participated in good faith.

“Meadow Creek Solar Farm is a vital project that will supply clean, stable renewable energy to over 100,000 Victorian homes,” he said.

“We’re also committed to delivering direct benefits to the nearest community, including reinvesting a portion of the project’s returns locally.”

Meadow Creek Solar Farm will now develop detailed management and construction plans, providing ongoing updates to the community.

every stage possible.”

Due to the approval being done through the government’s Development Facilitation Program, third-party appeals through VCAT are not allowed.

“This is a complete failure of democracy and an act of a desperate government that has lost touch with regional Victoria,” the MCA-

CAG statement read.

MCACAG member Jess Conroy said while the disallowed right to appeal had the group backed into a corner, it would look to work with council and relevant governing bodies to ensure the 72 conditions of the approved permit would be executed correctly prior to development commencing.

Ms Conroy said the group also had the option of taking the state government to Supreme Court, which would come at “huge” financial cost.

More than 500 objections were received on the development on the basis of increased fire risk, water contamination, flooding concerns, inability to insure neighbouring properties and the loss of agricultural land.

The project was referred to the Commonwealth government under the Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation Act (EPBC Act) due to environmental concerns of increased risk to endangered species.

The EPBC Act has yet to be approved by the federal government, who will receive a recommendation from the state government on the back of their approval.

Under the bilateral agreement between the governments, the state government Minister for Planning may determine the planning application prior to the Commonwealth’s decision on the controlled action.

Community turns out in force for dazzling 2025 King Valley Art Show

By JORDAN DUURSMAN

The King Valley Art Show returned in spectacular fashion over the weekend, drawing crowds in the hundreds to King River Brewing for its 26th annual celebration of regional creativity.

Opening night on Friday saw around 200 guests attend the gala event, catered by the local primary school as part of its major fundraising initiative.

Over the course of the weekend, more than 250 visitors came through on Saturday alone, with an estimated 300 or more attending on Sunday.

King Valley Arts president Anita Laurence said it was terrific to see that kind of community response year after year.

“It’s a much-loved event, with people returning and plenty of first-time visitors too,” she said.

The exhibition featured around 300 artworks from 115 artists, spanning a wide range of mediums and styles.

King Valley artist Ben Jenkins won the show’s grand prize, pocketing $3000, for his painting titled ‘Tiepolo progression in blue’.

The show was judged by Melbourne-based artist Ben Winspear, who also conducted live painting demonstrations on Sunday, adding to the festive atmosphere.

Children’s activities, artist talks, and the scenic brewery setting contributed to a vibrant and inclusive weekend.

Ms Laurence said overall the event was extremely successful.

“We’ve had lots of sales for the artists,” she said.

“We had Ben doing his demos, activities for the kids, and lots of people enjoying lunch and the brewery.”

“It was a real team effort with volunteers helping out across the board.

“It’s great for the community and great for our artists, we’re confident we’ll be putting it on next year.”

The event continues to be a fixture on the local arts calendar, with plans already underway for the 27th edition in 2026.

Female leaders focus of annual art exhibition

By SIMONE KERWIN

Pangerang Community Hub’s 11th annual art exhibition will open this Friday.

The art exhibition is being held in the Bainz Gallery at the Wangaratta Library and will be opened this Friday between 5.30pm and 7.30pm.

Each year, the Ovens Street neighbourhood house invites artists to produce pieces celebrating a strong female leader in the local community.

This year, Pangerang has asked local groups, including the Country Women’s Association, North East Multicultural Association and Wangaratta Art School, to join the Pangerang community itself in selecting someone from their own community to celebrate.

Participants have each worked on their own pieces for contribution to the exhibition.

Pangerang has partnered this year with Wangaratta Art School, which has supported its art program in 2025, introducing students to different art mediums such as textured art, fabric painting, paint pouring, collage, acrylics, watercolour and folk art.

Triumphant return

A LOOK BACK IN THE WANGARATTA CHRONICLE ARCHIVES

Wednesday, 4 November, 2015
By CAM POTTER

Wangaratta jockey Brooke Sweeney made a fantastic return to racing yesterday, with back-to-back wins at the Wangaratta Motor Group Melbourne Cup Day Races.

Riding David Strain's horse, Kalira, a five-year-old chestnut mare trained by Craig Dickson, in the 1170 metre A & J Perkins Builders Handicap, Sweeney claimed her first win by a full length.

In her next race, race five, the Wangaratta Motor Group Maiden Plate, Sweeney rode Mako Bay, a four-year-old brown mare, to win by a full two lengths in a brilliant run.

Making the back-to-back wins even sweeter for the 21-year-old was the come back victories on her home track after a serious crash in Wodonga back in February.

"I had to have two months off riding as I recovered," Sweeney said.

"I started slowly with simple track riding for six weeks, then worked my way back to race riding.

"My race riding was going okay, I still wasn't at 100 per cent.

"My weight was difficult to maintain but with summer coming up, I am finding it easier with the management side of things."

It was also a triumphant return for the local turf club, with the first races at the Wangaratta track since 20 December last year taking place after $1.5m worth of upgrades in the last 11 months.

Sweeney said the track was in great condition considering the amount of rain it had in the last few days.

"Greg (track manager) has done a terrific job, to get it up and running in the time he had," she said.

"Having 30mm of rain made the track a bit soft but it was a great track to run."

Sweeney said the two wins were fantastic especially on back-to-back rides.

Race four was particularly special, as Sweeney came back from a slow start on Kalira, heading into the straight very hard.

"I had to mix up my strategies, after a slow start," Sweeney said.

"She kicked hard into the straight and rode out the win.

"She started to tire towards the end but to win in her first start back was a great result."

Local owner David Strain said this race was a great trial for Kalira.

"We think she is a good horse, and had a good second trial," he said.

"Brooke was the best jockey on offer, especially on a day like today when most jockeys have other commitments."

Strain said the Wangaratta Turf Club and Paul Hoysted had done a terrific job building the profile of the race.

"Wangaratta Turf Club has come a long way since Paul Hoysted has come on board," he said.

"I think his first meet here he had 500 people turn up, to have close to 4500 people here today is a magnificent achievement.

"He has done a great job increasing the profile of the day in Wangaratta and building it into a lively place to be."

$70,000 road safety boost for North East

By JORDAN DUURSMAN

RoadSafe North East has secured approximately $70,000 in funding through the Victorian Government's Community Road Safety Grants program, paving the way for a suite of targeted initiatives aimed at reducing road trauma across the region.

The grant will support five key program areas: older motorcycle rider safety, off-road motorcycle safety, young driver education, safe cycling, and distraction awareness.

Each initiative is designed to promote behavioural change among road users, with a strong focus on vulnerable groups.

Executive officer Aaron Scales said the funding will allow RoadSafe North East to deliver programs tailored to the needs of local communities.

"All of the programs are designed around behaviour change," he said.

"For example, our distraction program focuses on mobile phone use and other hazards, using variable messaging signs across the region to deliver impactful safety messages."

The motorcycle safety initiative will include on-road training sessions for riders over 40, a group identified as high-risk due to returning to riding after long breaks.

"They're often returning riders who may not have the skills they

FUNDING BOOST: RoadSafe North East has secured approximately $70,000 in funding to support road safety programs, including the education in primary schools delivered by Glenn Clarke.

once did," Mr Scales said.

In Wangaratta specifically, the safe cycling component will be prominent, featuring ride-to-work days and a bike education program delivered in local primary schools by educator Glenn Clarke.

The programs will run over the next eight to nine months, aligning with the current financial year.

Mr Scales said the delay in funding had left the organisation unable to deliver programs for three months, impacting community engagement.

"While we continued in a minimal capacity, we just didn't have the money to do it properly," he said.

RoadSafe North East has a long-standing record of reducing fatalities in the region, and Mr Scales said he is confident the new funding will have a tangible impact.

"We've been running for over 15 years and have a proven track record of behaviour change and reducing road trauma in North East Victoria," he said.

The grants are part of the Victorian government's broader push to support schools, councils, and not-for-profits in delivering life-saving road safety education.

Member for Northern Victoria, Jaclyn Symes, said these important grants deliver life-saving messages right across our state.

"They give schools and community groups the chance to create local solutions to local road safety concerns," she said.

Mobile services affected while Telstra stations are upgraded

Telstra is upgrading its mobile base station at Gapsted this week, and Wangaratta South next week, temporarily affecting mobile services in the area.

The Gapsted station is being switched off on Wednesday/Thursday (5/6 November) and will be off from 7am to 5pm on Friday, 7 November.

The Wangaratta South station will be switched off for works from Monday to Thursday (10-13 November), with intermittent outages from Friday to Sunday (14-16 November).

Telstra regional general manager Jenny Gray said the upgrades will bring a better 4G/5G user experience by improving the mobile site's capacity, meaning faster downloads, smoother streaming and less congestion.

Telstra said landline services, NBN and satellite internet services, and mobile coverage from other providers will not be impacted during the works and any calls to Triple Zero from a Telstra mobile when the site is off air will automatically connect to another mobile network if available for connection to emergency services.

Telstra customers can continue to make calls and send texts during disruption to mobile services by switching on Wi-Fi Calling.

Business owners are encouraged to talk to their provider about connecting their EFTPOS terminals to their NBN or Wi-Fi connection to prevent delays in processing transactions.

Home invasion getaway driver in custody, awaiting sentence

A Wodonga woman who was a getaway driver in a Wangaratta home invasion last year has been taken into custody as she awaits her sentence for deceitful offending.

The 55-year-old faced Wodonga Magistrates' Court on Thursday pleading guilty to her role in the November, 2024 home invasion along with fraudulent purchases of thousands of dollars of power tools used to be pawned.

The court heard on 11 November last year around 1pm the defendant drove three co-accused in her grey hatchback to a Wangaratta home in Tavern Terrace.

A 20-year-old Tallygaroopna man, a 39-year-old man and a 35-year-old Moyhu man exited the vehicle wearing balaclavas, forcing entry at the rear of the house.

Two of the men carried a large safe containing $20,000 worth of coins into the hatchback.

The defendant in the vehicle then drove away, leaving her co-accused at the house just as the homeowner approached their address, driving past the hatchback.

The homeowner called their son who arrived and confronted the three men.

A safe was thrown at the man which hit him in the face, causing large lacerations.

The trio were spotted by patrolling police officers fleeing the property, running near the Wangaratta Christian Fellowships Church grounds, where they found hiding in the bushes and arrested.

Numerous items from the burglary were located with the offenders including a handbag, jewellery and a hard drive containing the Tavern Terrace home CCTV footage.

The defendant was later arrested and charged at her Wodonga home in December last year after police traced mobile phone data and identified her as the owner of the vehicle.

She denied her involvement to police and denied being at the house.

The safe containing the $20,000 coins was never located.

The 55-year-old also pleaded guilty to making multiple fraudulent purchases of $15,755 worth of power tools and motor oil across the North East.

The court heard from 7 June this year until 17 July, the woman made fraudulent purchases of chainsaws, brush cutters, blowers, a generator and motor oils at retail stores in Wangaratta, Benalla, Shepparton and Numurkah.

The purchases would be made with cheques from a stolen cheque-book attributed to an unknown man.

At each of the transactions the woman told the store cashier she would be making the purchases on behalf of the cheque book owner and all purchases would be declined days later.

On 21 July police searched the woman's Wodonga home to find a Jeep wagon driven by the accused to arrive at retail stores.

Inside the car were three blank stolen cheques and three cash converters pawn tickets.

The woman denied knowledge of the cheque book being stolen and said she was purchasing the items because a friend was starting a gardening business.

Defence counsel Nadia David said her client was under no illusions of the peril she faced for her offending, which was done throughout a period of major depression.

Ms David said the 55-year-old was diagnosed bipolar and had gambling issues.

Magistrate Ian Watkins adjourned sentencing to 20 November and ordered the woman be remanded into custody.

ENGAGING THE DISENGAGED: GRANT WILL HELP BIG BROTHERS BIG SISTERS CONTINUE YOUTH SUPPORT

By GRACE FREDSBURG

A $5000 Give Wangaratta grant will enable Big Brothers Big Sisters to continue to deliver its invaluable services to the Wangaratta and surrounding community.

For the past three and a half years, vulnerable and at-risk Wangaratta youth have engaged with the community-based organisation for one-on-one mentoring to change the course of their lives for the better.

Wangaratta Big Brothers Big Sisters mentoring coordinator, Caz Sammon, said this grant is essential as there is no ongoing government funding, with the organisation relying solely on the generosity of the community.

"We're so grateful for the support from Give Wangaratta and Into Our Hands...they're both long-term supporters of the Big Brothers Big Sisters youth mentoring program," Caz said.

"A lot of our young people are isolated, vulnerable, due to a whole lot of reasons, whether its family circumstances, out-of-home care.

"But the one factor they all have in common is they need some additional support and they need an adult who will show up for them."

In a time where struggling young people are at risk of disengagement and are oftentimes being left behind, Big Brothers Big Sisters aspire to foster a sense of hopefulness instead of hopelessness.

"These young people referred in, they're amazing... with so much potential," Caz said.

"We just want to provide that hand of support... to help them fulfill their potential."

"A lot of our young people do have difficulty - becoming more disconnected from school, reduced school attendance."

"But young people want to go to school, just sometimes it's not possible for various reasons."

"And so we're providing that support, role modelling; cheerleaders in the lives of young people and exposing them to a different future."

Caz said the program promotes improved engagement with education, lowered risk of substance abuse and contact with the law; evidence that not only points toward positive outcomes for young people, but also the wider community.

"There's definitely flown-on effects from mentoring," she said.

"For each young person who's in the program, the benefits flow on to all the people around them."

"As well as young people, our mentors are always surprised about how much they get out of being in the program."

"The volunteers tell me over and over again about how much they get out of the program."

Caz said volunteers dedicate their time to the betterment of these youth, and more volunteers are sought to help with a growing waiting list of referrals.

"We match (adult volunteers) really carefully - one-on-one - with a young person based on a whole range of factors... interests, preferences, life experience, background, need," she said.

"People who we would love to volunteer are people who make good friends, reliable, non-judgemental, good listeners, and the capacity to have an hour or two a week."

"They don't need any special skills; they just need to be regular humans and want to turn up and be there for a young person."

Caz explained that each week, the adult volunteer and the young person will catch up for an hour or two and enjoy a mutual interest or free, low cost activity.

"It's really about time spent, turning up for someone," she said.

Anyone interested in volunteering can call 1300 463 686 or email caz.sammon@bbbsau.org.

LOSING HIS LOCKS: Robbie Eads will get his first hair cut in six years to fundraise for a cancer cause.

Robbie to cut off his long locks to help others

By SHANE DOUTHIE

Nine-year-old Oxley Primary School student Robbie Eads is cutting his long locks for the first time in six years to raise funds for the World's Greatest Shave.

The World's Greatest Shave is the flagship fundraising campaign of the Leukaemia Foundation.

Previously known as Shave for a Cure, the campaign helps fund the foundation's suite of wraparound health services for blood cancer patients and their families, groundbreaking research projects, and helps campaign for real, tangible change with the ultimate goal of reducing lives lost to blood cancer.

Fundraisers can choose between shaving, cutting or colouring their hair to raise funds.

According to Robbie's mum Catherine Macdonald, the bulk of the hair on his head has not been trimmed since he was three years old.

"Robbie knew he was due for a hair cut, and thought why not do it for a good cause," Catherine said.

"He understands kids lose their hair during cancer treatments so thought the World's Longest Shave was the best cause for his much loved hair to benefit."

Robbie will get his hair cut on Friday, 5 December.

He has set a fundraising target of $3000.

You can help support his cause by going online at: <https://www.worldsgreatestshave.com/fundraisers/robbieeads/2025>

The school recently hosted its annual Arts and Technology Exhibition.

It drew a fantastic crowd, reflecting the strong community support for the school's visual arts and technology programs.

The exhibition featured an impressive range of student work across media, art creative practice, food technology, and product design and technology, each piece showcasing imagination, technical skill, and growth, and celebrated the creativity and innovation of the talented VCE students.

Special thanks went to VCE staff and all who contributed to the event's success.

The evening concluded with the presentation of High Achiever Awards, recognising excellence across Arts and Technology.

Investigating symmetry

Appin Park Primary School

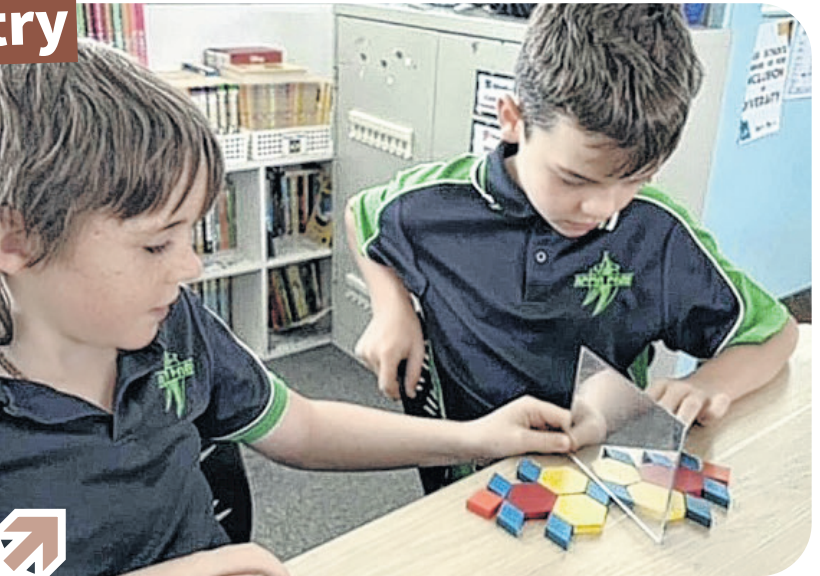

The year 3/4 students are currently studying symmetry and understanding that to be symmetrical, one half of the image or shape is the same as the other side.

The different methods they used to problem solve and find symmetrical shapes, gave them the opportunity to think outside the box and test their reasoning.

One student created a design while their partner used a mirror to show the reflection of that image, which proved challenging: trying to manipulate shapes to reflect a pattern requires engaging different parts of the brain.

Transferring this knowledge to view the natural environment or buildings and architecture, looking for symmetry, created some interesting points of discussion.

Moyhu Tennis Club moves to become a multipurpose hub

McPHERSON
amcpherson@
nemedi.com.au

Funding support from multiple sources is helping the Moyhu Tennis Club (MTC) move forward with its goal to have its courts remediated and the site developed into a multipurpose sports facility.

The club said it was notified in May by Victorian Treasurer Jaclyn Symes (MLC, Northern Victoria) that it was successful in obtaining a $41,000 grant through the Regional Development Victoria, Tiny Towns Fund.

Combined with support from Tennis Victoria Places to Play Tennis funding, and a Rural City of Wangaratta community grant of $5000, the investment has allowed the club to undertake a feasibility study for the upgrade of the Moyhu tennis courts and multipurpose facility.

MTC president Wendy Thorp said the club is currently working with Tennis Victoria, the RCOW recreation team and 2MH Consulting (sport facility design and project management), to complete the scoping project and concept design.

"We recently engaged with Tennis Victoria to update our strategic plan and once the scoping project is completed we hope to be (as council tells us we need to be) 'shovel ready' to be eligible to apply for major funding," she said.

"The big picture is to upgrade all four tennis courts, with two courts overlaid with a netball court and two overlaid with four pickleball courts, a basketball half-court and a hit up wall, all under lights.

"Not only will a multipurpose facility be a great asset for the Moyhu and the surrounding area, it will be a great asset to promote tourism in the King Valley tourism region."

Ms Thorp said the club's tennis programs have commenced for the season, with strong numbers once again across all programs including mini and junior hot shots, teen cardio and adult cardio for both men and women.

In addition, the club has casual Friday night social tennis, with players coming from Wangaratta, Molyullah, Greta, Whitfield, Cheshunt, Oxley, Milawa and the local community.

COMMUNITY ACCESS: Nutrien Ag Solution's Jane Murdoch (left) and Emma Hurlston (right) were welcomed to the Moyhu Tennis Club by club president Wendy Thorp (centre) to view the new barbecue installed with the help of combined Nutrien Ag Solutions and Rural City of Wangaratta community grants.

FACILITY UPGRADE: The new barbecues were installed at the Moyhu Tennis Club just in time for the new tennis season.

"It is fabulous to see the community out and about and connecting socially and through exercise," Ms Thorp said.

"Moyhu is part of council's growth corridor and new housing estates having commenced, so upgrading the courts would position the club as a vital hub for new residents, providing a healthy entry point into the community.

"Community engagement has played a key role in highlighting the need for improvement, with locals wanting local facilities and better public places and spaces for increasing social and physical interaction.

"By having improved facilities, we can increase our potential to attract more visitation and gain economic benefit to allow the club to grow and have increased participation in community life and higher community inclusion for all residents."

The club has also received two additional grants - one from council's community grants program, and a Nutrien Ag Solutions community grant - which it has used to install two electric public-use barbecues at the tennis courts, just in time for the current tennis season.

The club recently welcomed Nutrien Ag Solutions general manager of Eastern Victoria and Riverina Emma Hurlston, and team assistance/livestock administration Jane Murdoch, who visited the courts to see the barbecues successfully installed during a visit to the region.

Oxley community ready to remember again

The Oxley Residents' Association (ORA) will commemorate Remembrance Day at the Oxley Memorial Park on Tuesday, 11 November.

This moving event has been held annually in Oxley since it was revived in 2004 and is now an important annual fixture.

The ORA has worked hard to establish the Oxley Memorial Park within the township, and it certainly provides a fitting location to remember the fallen in the numerous wars and conflicts over the past century.

Each year, an ORA sub-committee liaises with the Wangaratta RSL sub-branch to formulate the program for the service.

Oxley resident, Justin Tilson, who served in Iraq and Afghanistan as a member of the RAAF, will emcee the event.

A guest speaker, a catafalque party and the laying of wreaths will add to the significance of the event, and students from the Oxley and Milawa Primary Schools will play an important role in the service.

A "field" of small, white crosses bearing the names of Oxley Shire residents who served in WW1 and WW2 but, sadly, did not return will be set out beside the monument.

Representatives of families from the former Oxley Shire, who had members involved in past conflicts, and members of the general community are warmly invited to attend.

Those attending are asked to assemble by 10.30am, ready for the 10.40am start.

At the conclusion of the service light refreshments will be served at the historic Oxley Shire Hall and after refreshments, those present are invited to visit the Milawa Cemetery, where graves of those who served will be marked with an Australian flag.

Graves which may only be a memorial, to those who were killed in action or died in service, will have a poppy attached to their flag, signifying that the grave may be a memorial only.

A member of the Milawa Cemetery Trust will be present from 1pm until 3pm to offer assistance or information about any of the soldiers and location of their graves.

Sadly, there are several soldiers represented amongst the 114 unknown, unmarked graves located within the cemetery.

For this reason, the Milawa Cemetery Trust has established the Pioneer Memorial Wall at the inside of the entrance gates, which will allow families to attach a plaque in honour of those loved ones who are buried in an unknown location within the cemetery.

FITTING TRIBUTE: A field of crosses beside the 100-year-old Oxley War Memorial will once again be a feature of the Remembrance Day service in Oxley on Tuesday, 11 November from 10.30am.

Make cycle season safe for all region road users

RoadSafe North East is highlighting important drive and ride rules, so motorists and cyclists can all enjoy the roads safely during the cycle season for the rest of spring and throughout summer.

RoadSafe North East spokesperson Aaron Scales said it's important to promote a mindset of shared respect between bike riders and motorists, particularly during these warmer months, with many bike riders visiting our cycle-friendly region and local cyclists training for upcoming events.

"Bike riders have a right to be on the road and motorists should not be surprised, nor resentful of their presence," he said.

"We strongly urge motorists to take care when they see a cyclist, slow down and when it's safe, allow at least 1.5 metres between the cyclist and your vehicle when passing."

A renewed focus on "Driver Distraction" will be at the core of RoadSafe North East's road safety awareness campaign over the coming months.

The community road safety group is aiming to reactivate its messaging around mobile phone use by drivers and also reminding bike riders, it is illegal to hold a mobile phone when cycling.

Distracted road users pose a major risk to other motorists, as well as vulnerable road users, such as other cyclists and pedestrians.

Concern about the high rates of mobile phone usage by drivers and their attitudes towards these risky behaviours, prompted the group to activate the Driver Distraction campaign right across the region.

SAFE PRACTICE: Gyll Lambert, Lyn Mackay, Jenny Dickinson and friends, are among the many local cyclists who regularly ride together during the spring season. RoadSafe North East is encouraging shared respect between bike riders and motorists on our roads.

"Multi-tasking has become second nature to many of us, with our busy modern lives, with mobile phones delivering news, entertainment and daily communication," Mr Scales said.

"Unfortunately, for some this behaviour extends to when they are behind the wheel, which can lead to disastrous consequences.

"We know that drivers who look at their mobile phones, even for a few seconds, are much more likely to be involved in a crash, endangering themselves, the public and other road users.

"Taking your eyes off the road to do another task, whether it be checking your phone, selecting music, even having a quick snack can result in a loss of concentration.

"The law states that drivers must be in proper control of their vehicle at all times, and there is increasing evidence of drivers being distracted.

"Watching screens instead of the road puts drivers, passengers and other road users at considerable risk and may result in a heavy fine and loss of multiple demerit points."

Safe driving tips for mobile phones and other devices

- If your phone has an app or function that prevents distraction while driving, use it.
- Consider putting your phone on silent and out of reach, or turn it off.
- Divert all calls to voicemail.
- Pull over safely and park to make or receive a call.
- Tell your family and friends not to call when you know you'll be driving.
- If you are using your phone hands free, warn callers you are driving and may have to end the call.
- Don't make calls in heavy traffic, poor road conditions or bad weather.
- Never look up phone numbers.
- Never read or send text messages.
- Don't use Smartwatches or other similar devices.
- Remember, taking your eyes off the road for two seconds or more doubles your crash risk. A mobile phone can be important in an emergency. If you need to use your mobile phone to call for help, stop and park safely where you will not endanger yourself or other road users.

ADF careers team has sights on Wangaratta enlistees

Recruitment was the mission for Australian Defence Force (ADF) personnel in Wangaratta last week with a bright orange information bus stopping at Apex Park.

The assignment for expert members was to greet and inform anyone who wished to obtain more information about a career in the ADF.

Rob Aitken from ADF Careers Albury is a veteran of 42 years after beginning in the artillery and he has also jumped out of an aircraft 3500 times as a parachute jump instructor.

He said the mobile bus enables members of the community to ask questions and even start the ball rolling with an application to the ADF on-board the bus.

Once you've lodged your application, the ADF sends you a link to complete an aptitude or psychometric test, which Mr Aitken said most government departments use now.

"Some people are more spatial, mechanical and the questions are geared and designed so they can work that sort of stuff out as well," he said.

"The applicant will then be sent a job opportunity report, and from the psychomet-

BY STEVE KELLY
skelly@nemedi.com.au

ric test, that lists all the jobs from all three services that we think you might have the compatibility with."

From this starting point, a career counsellor sets a time to have an initial interview or just a chat to get to know the applicant, talking about likes, dislikes and hobbies, understanding who the applicant is as a person.

The career counsellor will then guide the applicant to the right service and job.

After this, there is an assessment day where applicants undergo a medical and partake in a series of interviews.

"It's the greatest job in the world, I've been it 42 years, but it's a very difficult job and there are very trying times," Mr Aitken said.

"You'll always be pushed to your limits, physically, emotionally and throughout your career you can find yourself in some difficult situations.

"We have to make sure that you're that type of person who has a particular resilience, and a really good understanding of self."

ON THE BUSES: Senior military recruiting officer at ADF Careers Centre Albury, Captain Paras Lohani, inside the bus.

People might have heard stories or seen imagery about intense training for recruits and have thought twice about joining.

Mr Aitken explained that there is a pre-enlistment fitness assessment to make sure you're at a base level of fitness before they advance people to training.

"We don't want to break people because that's no good for anyone," he said.

"Depending on their service and job, this correlates into what members' fitness requirements are.

"If you're infantry, you're going to spend your time walking and weight bearing webbing, rifle, backpack, and boots."

But it's not all about the physical and it would be difficult to find another vocation where you are given the opportunities to advance academically as much as through the ADF.

Mr Aitken himself completed his year 12 qualification through the ADF, and tertiary studies in multiple courses are available that advance skills during service, with qualifications people can use after they leave the service.

"Whether it's individually or within that in-team environment, there's always massive encouragement from your team and you're always being dragged along," he said. "You do get a real sense of accomplishment achieved out of that."

People can enlist in the ADF from as young as 17 years old (with parental consent) and no one will be deployed until they're at least 18 years old.

There is an initial minimum period of service and this depends on the job.

For example if the ADF puts you through a university degree, they want that time back in service.

People can enlist as long as they can meet the minimum period of service before retirement age of 60 (for reservists it's 65).

"We have a lot of people enlist as part of a mid-life career change and I had a guy the other day who has driven trucks all his life and he wondered if he would be suitable and I told him the role of a combat engineer would suit him well," Mr Aitken said.

"He's fit, goes to the gym and runs everyday, so absolutely."

Mr Aitken said a lot of people have wanted to join for many years and they agonise over whether they should or shouldn't apply.

"If you think this might be something for you, start the application and you can withdraw at any time during the process," he advised.

Ready and Waiting for God, brings laughs for all

 BY ANITA McPHERSON
amcpherson@nemediamedia.com.au

The stage is set for the Wangaratta Players production of Waiting for God, a comedy by playwright Michael Aitkens, opening at the Stage Door Studio in Evans Street this Friday night.

The play explores the challenges of growing old 'disgracefully', set within the Bayview Retirement Village, where battle-axe Diana Trent conspires with new resident Tom Ballard to give the conniving manager his comeuppance through a hilarious conspiracy, with unexpectedly heart-warming results.

Well-known local actors Rose Sexton and Shane Douthie play Diana and Tom respectively, with Barbara Ryan sitting comfortably in the director's chair.

Barbara said she was delighted to be bringing to life a play which was created from a much-loved BBC television series of the 1990s, which she thought was hilarious.

"It's an absolute cracker," she said.

"Michael Aitkens has taken excerpts from the series and very cleverly formulated a play, with some great writing.

"On the face of it, it is very funny, quick-witted English humour, with some mayhem too which is hysterical, but it also has opportunities to go deep and touch people's hearts, which I really love."

Barbara said the play is about intelligent, strong-willed people who have lived amazing lives and "don't want to go silently into the night" and she is thrilled with her cast's progress.

Rehearsals got off to a flying start and thanks to great rapport among the actors, jokes were flying thick fast both on and off the stage, which is bound to reverberate with the audience.

Barbara said Rose and Shane have paired well in their lead roles, and their chemistry together has only gotten better.

DELIGHTFUL DUO: Director Barbara Ryan said Rose Sexton and Shane Douthie have great chemistry.

She said Diana Trent is a character who doesn't suffer fools gladly and can say some outrageous things to people, while Tom is fun and loving but also a little mad, and both actors understood them well.

"Rose has an amazing range, and everyone knows the wonderful, comedic actor Shane is, but it is nice to see these glimpses of a much softer, deeper side - as a pair, they are brilliant," Barbara said.

The Wangaratta Players will present the Michael Aitkens production Waiting for God at the Stage Door Studio from November 7 to November 23, with tickets selling fast, available at Trybooking.com.

Wangaratta Farmers Market on Saturday

Shop for local produce and meet local growers and makers when the Wangaratta Farmers Market is held this Saturday, 8 November from 8am to 12pm in the grounds of the Holy Trinity Cathedral in Docker Street.

There will be a range of stalls to browse featuring seasonal fruit and vegetables as well as baked goods, eggs, meats, cheeses, oil, preserves, wine and much more.

Johnny and Rebecca at the Da Vinci Social Club

Sing, dance and clap along when Johnny and Rebecca perform at the Da Vinci Social Club on Sunday, 7 December from 1.30pm to 4.30pm.

With their well-matched vocals and spontaneous performances, they will keep the crowd entertained as they play everyone's favourite hit songs, with Santa also expected to make an appearance.

Wangaratta Art Gallery artist talk

Melbourne-based artist Kate V M Sylvester will discuss her practice during an in-conversation event before the opening of her new exhibition, Pleats of Matter, in Gallery 2 of the Wangaratta Art Gallery.

Inspired by French philosopher Gilles Deleuze's idea that matter and time are always shaping each other, Kate V M Sylvester's work explores how humans and nature are deeply connected.

By slowly taking apart a basic t-shirt and exposing the multitude of layers and fabric that constitute its weave, she encourages us to think about the materials we use and how they reflect our relationship with the world around us.

The artist talk and opening will be held on Thursday, 13 November at 5pm and it is free to attend with bookings appreciated for catering purposes at wangarattaartgallery.com.au/Programs/.

Best and brightest at aggregate tennis comp

Saturday's fourth round of the Wangaratta Lawn Tennis, Croquet and Pickleball Club's senior aggregate tennis competition was one of the tightest clashes so far this season, with only microscopic margins separating players in each of the sections.

In section one, Mark Brown saluted with his 21-13, only marginally ahead Ryan Patterson (19-15) and Kevin Callahan (18-16).

Riley Minns had a tough day, finishing last on 10-24.

Section two saw Brian Scobie (23-18) hold off Frank Harris (22-19) for the narrowest of victories, while Ashley Weston (20-21) and Mandy Allen (17-24) weren't too far behind.

In section three, John Mansfield was far too good, securing top billing with his 24-18, but the rest of the section was a closer contest.

Mike Lairson and Colin Mackay split the silver, each recording 21-20m while Andrew Cope and Thomas McDonald couldn't be separated on 19-23.

Victor Lairson did enough to take out section four with his 24-17, while Patrick Oudin (20-21) came in second.

Pat Flynn and Mark Gorman recorded identical scores, rounding out the section with their 19-22.

In section five, it was a tie at the top, with Sartaj Bal and Phil Dryden both coming in with 21-16.

Greg Renner and Alan Busk also mirrored each other with their 19-20, while Carl Cutrona (16-24) brought up the rear.

Peter Curran was best afield in section six with his 23-16, edging out Amy Lairson (23-19) for the top spot thanks to fewer lost games.

Terry Flynn came in with 20-18, while Scott Long (17-21) and Max McAuliffe (14-24) rounded out the group.

There was a bit of a wide berth from top to bottom in section seven, but it was John Shanley who reigned supreme with his 20-11.

James Wilkinson (19-24) and Tony Clarebrough (18-17) were in the conversation, while Sue Piper (16-18) and Mick Keogh (11-24) were adrift.

Section: 1 - Mark Brown 21-13, Ryan Patterson 19-15, Kevin Callahan 18-16, Riley Minns 10-24.

Section: 2 - Brian Scobie 23-18, Frank Harris 22-19, Ashley Weston 20-21, Mandy Allen 17-24.

Section: 3 - John Mansfield 24-18, Mike Lairson 21-20, Colin Mackay 21-20, Andrew Cope 19-23, Thomas McDonald 19-23.

Section: 4 - Victor Lairson 24-17, Patrick Oudin 20-21, Pat Flynn

19-22, Mark Gorman 19-22.

Section: 5 - Sartaj Bal 21-16, Phil Dryden 21-16, Greg Renner 19-20, Alan Busk 19-20, Carl Cutrona 16-24.

Section: 6 - Peter Curran 23-16, Amy Lairson 23-19, Terry Flynn 20-18, Scott Long 17-21, Max McAuliffe 14-24.

FIRED UP: New Milawa senior coach Brenton Gray said he was excited about ripping into preseason with a young squad.

‘Hoota’ to lead younger-skewing Demons

■ From back page

“We’ll get them super fit, have a heap of fun, and make sure everyone enjoys their time at the club.

“I’ve been in this situation before when I coached Stanhope just after a grand final when we lost 19 players from the grand final side.

“If you can get the kids on board, they can be pretty bloody exciting, so we might go further than some people think.

“Hopefully we can get a couple of these good recruits over the line in the next couple of weeks, and then we will just get stuck into the hard work.

“Hard work and effort, that’s all I ask for – get there, do the hard work, give me effort, and I’m the first bloke to shout them a drink afterwards.”

Gray’s appointment to the senior coaching role means a husband and wife will coach the top squads at a club, with Kerrie Gray signing on to coach the Demon’s A grades for a fourth season.

“We’ve done it before back at Stanhope, we did for a few years over there and it worked well,” he said.

“It just gets everyone involved, bringing together the footballers and netballers as much as you can, everyone’s on the same page and having a heap of fun.”

Gray said the Demons would have six preseason runs before the Christmas break, recommencing in mid to late January.

Milawa finished third on the ladder in 2025 but crashed out in the semi-final.

WANGARATTA A1 LAWN BOWLERS FLIP THE SCRIPT ON YARRAWONGA

A1: Wangaratta Hyundai A1 recovered from a sluggish start to power over the top of Yarrawonga on Saturday.

Wang took some time to find their feet on the artificial surface at Yarra and trailed the home side by as many as 20 shots overall with the match half over.

Phil Davern, Greg Braden, Tom Morrow and Gary Fenlon were the only rink to hold a lead at the halfway mark, and they continued on to win their rink 19-16.

Maurie Braden, Rho Smith, Michael Howard and Graeme Smith ignited the comeback when they went on a scoring spree for seven consecutive ends that turned an eight-shot deficit into a seven-shot win (22-15).

Adrian Pantling, Mark Allan, Gerald Brown and John Kane also rallied from six behind to win by two (20-18) and Trevor Selwood’s rink (16-17) just went down against Gary Sanders’ rink.

Final scores: Wangaratta 16 pts 77 shots def Yarrawonga 2 pts 66 shots.

Next week Wang will travel to Yarra/Mul GCR.

PURE FOCUS: Ric Chivers is locked into the contest.

PHOTOS: Melissa Beattie

ON THE WAY: Barbara McDonald sends down a shot.

A4: Wangaratta Niko’s Butchery A4 had a strong win at home against Yarrawonga on Saturday.

Gary King, Murray Lawn, Mick Johnstone and Rob Worthington were in control all match as they cruised to a 27-17 win, while Terry Johnson, Richard Hermassoo, Barb McDonald and Leon Quartermain were never in trouble on their way to a 25-18 win.

Terry Corrigan, Ric Chivers, John Keen and Tyson Chivers won their rink 19-15, and Brian Challman’s rink fell too far behind early before storming home, losing 15-18.

Final scores: Wangaratta 16 pts 86

shots def Yarrawonga 2 pts 68 shots. Wang will host North Albury next week.

A5: Wang Luminosity A5 found ladder leaders Commercial Club too tough an assignment at home on Saturday.

The visitors gained maximum points against a weakened Wang side due to some player unavailabilities.

Ron McAuliffe, Chris Bell, Neil Jensen and Tiger Bussell fought hard all day but just went down 18-19, while Lyn Kahlefeldt’s rink (19-27) and Keith Izard’s rink (15-31) also lost their matches.

Final scores: Wangaratta 0 pts 52

shots lost to Commercial Club 14 pts 77 shots.

Wang will host Corryong next week.

B2: Wang WinSec B2 went very close to upsetting undefeated Corowa Civic at Corowa on Saturday.

John Knight, Ann Keen, Lance Jenkin and Lorna Nankervis had a strong win (22-15), while Neil Reid, Trevor Prentice, Giz Tahin and Deb Savage lost 15-19.

Lyn Sier, Mick Lenane, Bob Edwards and Kevin Lenehan also went down, 18-23.

Final scores: Wang 2 pts 55 shots lost to Corowa Civic 12 pts 57 shots.

Wangaratta host Club Mulwala next week.

‘Hoota’ leads Dees

■ The 2024 O&K reserves premiership co-coach takes on the top job at Milawa

New Milawa senior coach Brenton ‘Hoota’ Gray is looking forward to the challenge and experience of leading the Demons.

The club announced Gray’s appointment to the role in mid-October, taking over from previous coach Matt Graham.

Gray has a rich and successful history as both a player and coach at Rochester in the Goulburn Valley League and Stanhope in the Kyabram and District league, with over 370 senior games, multiple best and fairest awards, and five premierships to his name.

After joining the club in 2021, Gray joined the reserves coaching panel the next year, before becoming a full playing co-coach in 2023, and helping to lead the Demons to the reserves flag in 2024.

While there have been a number of players who have left the club in the offseason, Gray said he was eager to get stuck into preseason, flagging a likely influx of youth to the Demons’ ranks.

“They needed some stability and I’d brought a few players in over the last few years, I had a few connections, they asked if I would help, and I said I would, and it just snowballed from there to coaching,” he said.

“We’re going to have a lot of youth come in, they’re going to be unpredictable, they’re going to be up and down, but I’m going to come up with a really good game plan that I think will suit the kids.

HOUSE PROUD

IT'S been a long time coming, but Big Brother is back where it belongs: both live from Dreamworld on the Gold Coast and airing six nights a week on Channel 10.

When it debuted on our screens in 2001, the series turned everyday Aussies into household names, inspiring pop culture phenomena like "the bum dance" and catchphrases such as "Game on, moles". This unscripted, unfiltered social experiment paved the way for the seemingly endless reality shows that have followed it, from Love Island to Married at First Sight, I'm a Celebrity... and beyond.

A recent, pre-recorded Seven revamp floundered in the ratings, but new host Mel Tracina (The Cheap Seats' cultural correspondent) believes the time is right for a back-to-basics Big Brother competition.

"Audiences that grew up watching the show have been expressing for years how much they miss the OG format, so 10 are bringing it back – not just for the old fans but for the new generation to fall in love with as well," reality TV super-fan Tracina enthuses.

"I'm excited to be in the Big Brother world, to watch it all unfold like a viewer but then bring that super-fan energy to the house and be part of the action.

"Plus, if you've been out and about you will know that everything Y2K is cool again (I've seen people rocking [early 2000s trends] Ed Hardy T-shirts and Von Dutch hats). It's the right time to bring it back!"

On Sunday night's premiere, Tracina welcomes 12 strangers from all walks of life to BB's colourful new pad.

"The housemates are a real mixed bag, a cross-section of Aussies who would never cross paths in everyday life," she says.

"Without saying too much (and angering Big Brother), we have a teacher, barber, ex-pro surfer, a single mum, some housemates who have never lived out of home, one that's a self-confessed bogan and one that is an absolute clean freak that showers multiple times a day. I cannot wait for Australia to meet these housemates!"

Suburban secrets: Marissa (Sarah Snook) faces every parent's worst nightmare when her young son Milo (Duke McCloud) goes missing.

THE BLAME GAME

ALL HER FAULT
Streaming from Friday, Binge

Sarah Snook navigates every parent's worst nightmare – a missing child – in this gripping suburban mystery that will pacify any viewers who are patiently waiting for the third season of Big Little Lies. The Succession star plays Marissa Irvine, a mother who arrives at a house to collect her young son Milo (Duke McCloud) from a play date with a school friend, only to discover that the stranger who answers the door has never heard of him and that her boy has mysteriously disappeared.

Initially thought to be a simple misunderstanding, the bewildering situation quickly spirals into something far more sinister that threatens to blow apart Marissa's seemingly perfect life. Dakota Fanning (Ripley) co-stars as Jenny, Marissa's close friend who may know more than she first lets on, while Michael Peña (Jack Ryan) plays the police detective leading the investigation. The exceptional cast also includes Jake Lacy (The White Lotus) and Abby Elliott (The Bear). Given the Chicago-set series was filmed in Melbourne, a few local faces may appear on screen as the eight-part thriller unfolds. In real life, Snook recently became a parent herself after welcoming a baby daughter with comedian Dave Lawson in May 2023. Despite the bleak subject matter, she said she couldn't resist the opportunity to dive into such a uniquely compelling tale. "It's a real gift of a twist, so I couldn't say no," Snook told Vanity Fair. Based on the best-selling novel by Irish author Andrea Mara, it will put you firmly on the edge of your seat from the get-go. – Travis Lewis

HAPPINESS
Streaming, HBO Max

Rebecca Gibney takes centre stage as the excitable mother of a Broadway director (Harry McNaughton, pictured with Gibney) who is forced to return home to New Zealand in this musical comedy. It's not long before she ropes her reluctant son into helping a local amateur theatre production, setting him on a surprising path to redemption. The heart and humour are reminiscent of Strictly Ballroom.

FRANKENSTEIN
Streaming from Friday, Netflix

Aussie star Jacob Elordi goes from handsome to horrifying to play the creature at the centre of Guillermo del Toro's take on author Mary Shelley's 1818 gothic masterpiece. Oscar Isaac (pictured) steps into the title role of the scientist who brings Elordi's monster to life in an experiment that leads to their mutual undoing. More than two centuries old, Shelley's captivating story remains a tale worth telling.

LYNLEY
Streaming, BritBox

An aristocratic inspector (Leo Suter) partners up with a working-class sergeant (Sofia Barclay, pictured with Suter) to tackle complex murder cases in this intelligent police procedural. Based on the crime novels by Elizabeth George, it's a fresh spin on the characters who first appeared on screen in the popular BBC drama The Inspector Lynley Mysteries, which ran from 2001 to 2008.

ALL'S FAIR
Streaming, Hulu on Disney+

Leave it to Ryan Murphy to assemble a cast of leading ladies that reads like the guest list to an A-list fashion show. Kim Kardashian, Naomi Watts (both pictured), Sarah Paulson, Niecy Nash-Betts, Teyana Taylor and Glenn Close star in this legal drama that follows a team of female divorce attorneys. The seductive squad navigate break-ups and saucy scandals both in and out of the courtroom.

ROBIN HOOD
Streaming, Stan

Aussie newcomer Jack Patten steals the spotlight in this fresh take on the legendary outlaw who robs the rich to feed the poor. This 10-part reimagining follows the archer's relationship with noblewoman Marian (Lauren McQueen) amid the Norman invasion. Sean Bean co-stars as the Sheriff of Nottingham, alongside Connie Nielsen as Queen Eleanor of Aquitaine (pictured with Bean).

FREE-TO-AIR

BLUE LIGHTS SBS, Thursday, 9.25pm

Patrolling a similar beat to Line of Duty and Trigger Point, this gritty Belfast-based police drama follows newly qualified officers as they navigate law and order in a post-conflict Northern Ireland. Hailed for its authentic portrayal of the unpredictable and harrowing nature of the risky job, the BAFTA-winning series remains as topical as ever in its action-packed third season. In this week's penultimate episode, Grace (Siân Brooke, pictured) and Sean (Brendan Quinn) bring in George (Conor Mullen) for questioning.

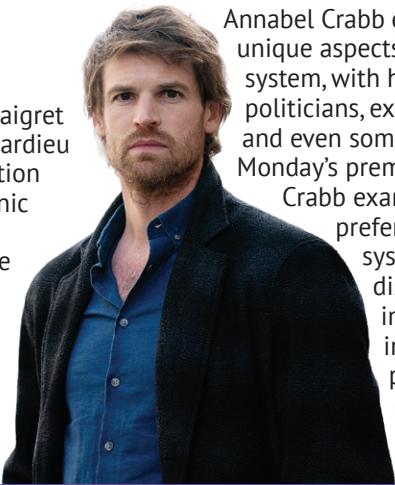

ANNABEL CRABB'S CIVIC DUTY ABC TV, Monday, 8.30pm

Every three years, Australians make their way to the local primary school, church or community centre to line up, number a couple of slips of paper and scoff down a sausage in bread – civic duty done. But there's a lot more to our democracy than what goes down on election day. In this informative three-part series, Annabel Crabb explores the more unique aspects of our electoral system, with help from politicians, experts, journalists and even some former PMs. In Monday's premiere, "Fairness", Crabb examines the preferential voting system and the distinctly Australian invention of an independent, permanent election authority. It's more fun than it sounds.

MAIGRET ABC TV, Friday, 8.35pm

Whether your memories of French detective Jules Maigret feature Richard Harris, Michael Gambon, Gérard Depardieu or even Rowan Atkinson, this modern British adaptation offers an enticing update for Georges Simenon's iconic character. This time, Benjamin Wainwright (pictured), Belgravia: The Next Chapter brings a deadpan sense of humour to his Maigret, a relatively young chief inspector who prefers not to play by the rules. In Friday's premiere, he's tasked with investigating a series of bank robberies, but instead is drawn to the murder that his colleague Foulon (Jack Deam) is working on. He decides to juggle both cases, racing to solve them before he gets himself fired.

RECKLESS SBS, Wednesday, 8.30pm

Indigenous lawyer June (Tasma Walton) and her hapless brother Charlie (Hunter Page-Lochard, pictured with Walton) don't exactly see eye-to-eye. Far from it – in fact, the feuding siblings at the centre of this deadly funny crime comedy would happily never lay eyes on each other again. But when they're both involved in a fatal hit and run – and a clumsy cover-up – in their hometown of Fremantle, chaos and an escalating series of lies bring them back together as they try to outrun the consequences of their actions. Adapted by Kodie Belford (Mystery Road) and Stuart Page (Total Control) from Neil Forsyth's Scottish mystery Guilt, it's an outstanding thriller with a uniquely Aussie twist.

HELP WITH HAY FEVER

With HEALTHDIRECT

As spring blooms across Australia, many of us are enjoying warmer days and colourful gardens but for a growing number of people, this season also brings the familiar sniffles, itchy eyes and sneezing of hay fever (allergic rhinitis). Around one in five Australian adults experience hay fever.

It's caused when your immune system reacts to allergens such as pollen, dust mites, mould, or animal dander.

Why your "dusty spring" might really be allergy season

Hay fever is more than just a mild irritation. Common symptoms include sneezing, a runny or blocked nose, itchy or watery eyes, and mouth breathing.

While many people manage these with over-the-counter medicines or small lifestyle changes, untreated hay fever can lead to tiredness, disturbed sleep, headaches, poor concentration and for people with asthma, it can make symptoms worse.

When to pause and check your symptoms

It can be hard to know what to do when symptoms flare up; should you just ride it out, or see your GP or local pharmacist?

That's where healthdirect can help. The healthdirect Symptom Checker is an easy-to-use, online tool designed to guide you through your symptoms and help you decide the best next step - whether that's self-care at home, a pharmacy visit, a GP consultation or emergency care.

It's free, available 24/7 and developed with clinical governance, so you can trust the advice you receive.

Spring into action

If you're wiping your eyes more than usual, feeling congested or sneezing a lot this spring, don't just assume it will pass.

Try these simple steps to manage your symptoms:

- Keep windows closed when pollen counts are high and avoid mowing grass if possible.
- Shower and rinse off allergens after being outdoors and avoid drying bed linen outside.
- Ask your pharmacist or GP about antihistamines or nasal sprays to help control symptoms.

By taking action early and using the healthdirect Symptom Checker, you can make an informed decision about whether your hay fever symptoms are manageable at home or need professional care.

PUPPY TRAINING: Toilet training your dog requires patience and consistency. PHOTO: Iris_forest/Shutterstock.com

Toilet training your puppy

With RSPCA KNOWLEDGEBASE

Toilet training a puppy or dog requires patience and consistency. Every dog learns at their own pace, and it's essential to use reward-based positive reinforcement techniques to encourage the behaviour you want.

Start by giving your dog plenty of opportunities to go outside, especially first thing in the morning, after meals, and frequently throughout the day.

When your dog toilets in the correct spot, immediately reward them with praise, a treat, or a favourite toy.

The reward must occur immediately after the event (within a few seconds), not when the dog comes back inside, as the dog will not make an association between going to the toilet in the right spot and the reward unless it is given straight afterwards.

Supervise your dog closely to catch these moments and reward them promptly.

Look for signs that your dog may need to go, such as sniffing, circling, or pausing in one spot.

By learning your dog's signals, you can guide them outside in time.

If your dog has an accident inside, avoid reacting.

Instead, clean the area with a non-ammonia-based cleaner to remove odours and the likelihood of the dog using the same place again.

Ignoring indoor accidents helps your dog focus on the positive rewards for going in the right place.

Never punish your dog for accidents, as this can create distress and confusion and may delay progress.

Young puppies may not have full control over their bladder, so be patient as they develop.

With consistency and positive reinforcement, most dogs learn to toilet in the desired location over time.

Fishing

ON THE BITE:

YELLOWBELLY ON THE BITE

WANGARATTA

It's hard to believe that it's November already.
Christmas is next month, school holidays are getting closer and soon it will be 2026. WOW
With a month still to go before the Murray cod season opens, there are plenty of great fishing options around.
I fished Lake Nillahcootie with my friend Sonny last week.
We managed to catch four yellowbelly and one Murray cod.
None of the fish were very big.
It was quite slow throughout the afternoon, with a bite window opening at sunset.
We caught two yellowbelly in the first three hours and the other three fish in the last 45 minutes of the day.
Every fish was caught on a small sized Old

Mate lure in pink and purple colour.
As the weather continues to warm up, the fish will start to become more active and the lake should start to really fish well.
Lake Nillahcootie has never been the place to go to catch large trophy sized yellowbelly.
Lakes Hume and Eildon are the places to go to catch them, and now is the time to go there as both lakes are producing some very large fat yellowbelly at the moment.
Lake Hume has also been producing a few redfin and trout lately as well.
The redfin have been pretty scarce and not everyone is catching them, but a few are definitely being caught by some lucky anglers.
If trout fishing is your thing, now is a great time to head up into the hills and fish the trout streams.
They are looking about as perfect as they get at the moment and will start to warm up a little bit over the coming few weeks as things start to get hot.
